Washington Avenue.

For President, 1872,

JAMES R. DOOLITTLE,
OF WISCONSIN.

Subject to the decision of the national democratic convention.

[The New York World on Senator Doolittle.]

"His record is so consistent and unbroken that it may be likened to a straight line drawn across a puzzle—a clear beam, unbroken by the fluctuating atmosphere of American politics, through the past twenty years."

[From a copy of "The Daily People," delivered at Dr. Doolittle's office, in 1852.]

"Let us say by the South as Cambyses proposed to his people—'Carrow after they have been humbled, and then we will rule over them by the armfuls of that power.' When the question arose in the senate: 'What shall be done with Latimer and the pro-slavery Leagues, there were voices from the other side, shouting, 'Confiscate their property; make them slaves.' There was, however, none that day who would have made them slaves to the slaves, slaves to the families, whose slaves they are. None has made them fellow-citizens, and thus add to the power and glory of our country. Let us, however, have done with the Southern League and the Southern Confederacy. Let the allegiance to the union and the flag, make the southern people our fellow-citizens, and thus add to the power and glory of the nation."
